

TELEGRAPHIC SUMMARY.

Nov. 13. The anarchist's funerals passed off quietly. About 1,875 immigrants arrived in California last week. The next national educational association will meet in San Francisco. Severe rioting occurred in Trafalgar square, and a great many arrests were made. Robt. Lincoln says that the defeat of Fred Grant in New York demonstrates the fact that the hereditary platform is not strong enough for the republican party to stand on. Gladstone says that he did not know enough about the anarchist cases to venture an opinion as to whether they should have been hanged or not, while Boulanger says he would have petitioned for commutation of the death penalty. Nov. 14. Gen. Miles and party have returned from Arizona to California. One lesson of the recent election is that New York is a democratic stronghold, while Ohio is strongly republican. One peculiarity about the fast train from San Francisco is, the emigrant train makes faster time than the first-class train. O'Brien is said to be greatly excited. He says the jailors acted in bad faith with him in removing his clothes while he was asleep. Nov. 15. Gen. Sheridan has handed his annual report to the president. He makes many recommendations. The California state board of trade has recommended a big celebration when the O. & C. is completed. The Alaskan part of the fisheries business will be shelved during the fisheries investigation. Rev. Charles Berry, of England, has been invited to be Beecher's successor.

SUPREME COURT.

Salem Nov. 10, 1887. Jno. Keller, respondent, vs. E. Bley, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county; argued and submitted; N. Simon and Alfred T. Sears, Jr., attorneys for respondent, J. M. Brown, attorney for appellant. Larkin vs. the Oregon Pacific R. Co.; motion for rehearing denied. Nov. 14, 1887. A. S. Kimball, resp., vs. John Moir, Jane Dunbar Moir, and John Robertson, apps.; appeal from Multnomah county; argued and submitted, Hon. Rufus Mallory, attorney for respondent; J. M. Budd, appellant, vs. the Multnomah Street Railway Co. et al., respondents; judgment of the court below affirmed; opinion by Strahan, J. Moses S. Pike, appellant, vs. T. Kennedy and J. E. O'Shea, respondents; judgment of the court below affirmed; opinion by Lord, C. J. W. S. Powell et al., appellants, vs. the Willamette Valley R. R. Co. et al., respondents; judgment of the court below affirmed; opinion by Thayer, J. [None of the foregoing opinions are of any special importance to the public excepting that of Pike vs. Kennedy. This is a suit for ejectment arising out of the alleged defects of the foreclosure of a mortgage. It is held that proof to obtain publication of a summons must show that diligence has been used to obtain personal service, or facts of such a character as would excuse diligence. Proof that the defendant resides in Walla Walla amounts to facts excusing diligence to ascertain the whereabouts of the defendant within the state. Proof that the defendant resided out of the state was not sufficient to give the court jurisdiction, but it must show that he was actually out of the state at the time the affidavit was made.] Ellen Day, respondent, vs. M. Holland et al., appellants; appeal from Multnomah; cause on trial. Gregory et al., respondents, vs. the N. P. Lumbering & Mfg. Co., appellants; appeal from Multnomah; cause on trial. Nov. 16, 1887. Geo. A. Coffin, et al., apps., vs. City of Portland and P. W. V. R. R., resp.; appeal from Multnomah county; argued and submitted. James G. Chapman and W. R. Bilyeu, attorneys for resp.; McDougall and Bower, attorneys for apps.

CONFESSION FROM MARPLE.

A Statement Made to a Fellow Prisoner—Implicated in Three Well-Known Murders. Wm. H. Hess, a prisoner confined in the Yamhill county jail with R. E. Marple, the executed murderer, on Monday filed with County Clerk Bridwell a statement of a confession he swears Marple made to him the day before he was hanged. Marple stated to him that he was guilty of the murder of Corker, but exacted from him a promise never to mention the matter if he were reprieved. Since the murderer is dead, Hess tells the tale. Marple confessed that he was guilty of the murder of Corker; but his mother was equally implicated with him. He stated that the old lady was intimate with Corker. Knowing that he had money, they plotted to kill him. The old lady gave him an opiate on the evening of Nov. 1, 1886, and between 9 and 10 let her son in the store through the window. The old fellow woke up during the robbery, and Mrs. Marple struck him with the back of an ax. This failing to settle him, Marple then took the weapon and killed him with the sharp edge. Then they took the money, $206.75, which Marple averred his mother kept instead of dividing with him. Marple also stated that with two other men he murdered Mrs. Hager, near Oregon City, in 1878, with a hatchet. They thought she had money. He said that the man who was tried and convicted of the murder and is now serving out a term in the penitentiary, is innocent. He said also that he was one of the parties who helped to kill a French woman (Emma Merlotin) in Portland, a year or two ago; that she was killed by being chopped to death; that there were four persons connected with it—three inside who did the work, and one outside watching. Marple also confessed that he manufactured the stories about Sheriff Harris, Clark and others being implicated in Corker's murder. He said he had made and would make that statement on the scaffold to injure them because he had a grudge against them. There is little doubt that Marple made the confession claimed, of which the above are the salient parts; and there is strong probability of the truth of his utterances. His mother was of a very unsavory reputation, and it was a mistake to release her when once arrested. She has been implicated with her son in one or two transactions in which she was no doubt equally guilty with him. The story is very consistent and many outside circumstances conspire to stamp the impression of truth upon its face. In regard to the other murder it is known that Marple lived in Oregon City at or about the time of the Hagar transaction and there are one or two circumstances which point to him as one of the murderers of Emma Merlotin. One peculiar circumstance in connection with the three murders should be remarked. All were committed with an axe; and that Marple was an advocate of the axe as of peculiar fitness as an implement of death, is evidenced by his remark on the scaffold to Sheriff Harris, when that functionary was tightening the noose, "Don't choke me! If you had an axe you would do a shorter job."

IN MEMORIAM.

[BY A SCHOOLMASTER.]

On Monday, October 31, 1887, sorrowing relatives and friends laid to rest in the Turner cemetery the remains of Ina Schmidt. Her death is deeply felt not only by her prents but by her teachers and a large number of school mates. She was a bright little girl, of gentle disposition, naturally unselfish and truthful. Her greatest delight was to make her playmates happy, and she always had kind words for every one. It would seem to us that she was "too fair to earth," so God took her to heaven. Fold the little hands so waxen, O'er the pulseless, darling breast; For our little Ina is sleeping In death's long and dreamless rest. Press the gold-fringed eyelids gently, O'er the sunny, trusting eyes. Eyes that, closed on earth forever, Open up in paradise. Hain we question why it happened, How it can be for the best; Asking why those feet, so early On their journey, needed rest. Yet, who would wish to call our Ina From her home of light above? Who would ask that God had left her Here, to cheer us with her love? Even with our love to guide her, In the paths of good and right, Would she still have entered heaven With a soul so pure and white?"

MARRIED.

FETHEROW-SEBRING.—On Thursday, Nov. 10, 1887, at his residence in Polk county, by Rev. Preston Holman, Miss Lillie Sebring to Jos. Tetherow. SULLIVAN-NILES.—Nov. 10th, 1887, at the residence of J. M. Bigler, in South Salem, by Elder J. W. Webb, Mr. Elward Sullivan, of Newport, and Miss Flora Niles. WILLIAMS-ROSE.—On Thursday, Nov. 10, 1887, at his residence in Polk county, by Rev. Preston Holman, Miss Martha Rose to Hugh Williams. The parties most concerned in the two above notices were married at the same time and place. They came to Salem, and were engaged yesterday in taking in the sights. WHITNEY-PARKER.—At the residence of Rev. H. A. Newell, on Monday evening, Nov. 14th, 1887, Frank A. Whitney, to Miss Ada F. Parker, by Rev. H. A. Newell. The bride and groom have each held positions at the asylum, the bride only resigning yesterday. Mr. Whitney contemplates going into business here, and the happy couple will make Salem their future home. COSPER-PALMER.—At the residence of the bride's father, Salem, Nov. 15th, by Elder J. W. Webb, Miss Ora L. Palmer to Mr. Harry B. Cosper, of Dallas. After the ceremony, which occurred in the presence of a few relatives and friends of the bride and groom, a very sumptuous luncheon was served and heartily enjoyed by all present. The bride is an estimable young lady, and the groom an excellent young man, and both are to be congratulated on the wise step they have taken.

DIED.

BROWN.—Near Slepton, W. T., on Nov. 24, of congestion of the lungs, the infant daughter of Charles and Emma Brown, aged nine months. RICHTER.—On Wednesday, November 16th, 1887, at his residence in East Salem, on the asylum road, of brain fever, Wm. Richter, aged about 60 years. The deceased was for a number of years a guard at the penitentiary. He leaves a wife and five children. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence. The services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Muelhaupt, and the body will be interred in Lee Mission cemetery. FRIZZELL.—At Oak Grove, Polk county, Nov. 11, 1887, Mrs. Lilly Frizzell, aged 71 years. Mrs. Frizzell was the mother of Mrs. H. M. McNary, of this city, Wm. Joseph and G. L. Frizzell, of Wasco county, Mrs. A. M. Holmes and J. P. Frizzell, of Polk county. The funeral will take place at the Holmes cemetery, at 1 p. m. Saturday. The services will be conducted by Rev. J. W. Webb, of Salem. LUNN.—At her home in Salem, Or., Thursday, November 10, 1887, at 2:30 p. m., of paralysis of the heart, Mrs. Margaret M. Lunn, wife of J. H. Lunn. Mrs. Lunn was taken ill several days since, of a fever, and that her condition was at all serious was known to few outside of her family physician and immediate relatives. Indeed, the first intimation that most of her large circle of friends and acquaintances had that she was at all ill was the mournful sight of crape fluttering from the closed doors of the store of Lunn & Brown. The news of her death was a painful surprise to the entire community. The immediate cause of her death was paralysis of the heart. Mrs. J. H. Lunn was born in North Carolina on March 9, 1844, and was therefore 43 years 8 months and 1 day old. Her maiden name was Margaret M. Love. She married J. H. Lunn at Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 9, 1865. Mr. and Mrs. Lunn came to Oregon in 1878, settling in Albany; afterwards removing to Scio, and then returning to Colorado. They came back to Oregon in 1883, and settled in Salem, and have resided here ever since. The deceased was a devoted and consistent Christian and was a member of the M. E. church. She enjoyed the greatest respect and confidence of her associates, old and young, and the membership of her church will suffer a serious loss by her untimely decease. At the time of her death she had hardly recovered from the shock occasioned by the death of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Brown, which occurred last April. Her surviving husband and son-in-law, and little grandson, doubly bereft by the loss of her who was his second mother, are entitled and will receive the profound sympathies of many friends. The funeral will take place at the M. E. church next Sunday, and it is expected that the services will be conducted by Rev. M. C. Wire, of Eugene, her former pastor, assisted by Rev. Wm. Rollins. The remains will be interred in the Odd Fellows cemetery.

GEORGE WATT IN LONDON.

Sights in Edinburgh and Glasgow—The Unemployed in London—"Buffalo Bill." A second readable letter has been received from Geo. Watt by his brother James. In it he describes his visit to Glasgow, the metropolis of Scotland, containing over 500,000 population, an excursion down the river Clyde, and the interesting sights on either shore; his visit to Edinburgh, the "second Athens," and its various observatories, monuments, castles, and the royal gallery of art, Edinburgh college and museum, and other world famous objects. The castle he describes as the grandest sight of the city. His letter continues: "Between Edinburgh and Glasgow it is principally farming country, the objects mainly noticeable being old-fashioned stone houses and neat stacks of grain, which, instead of being threshed soon after cutting, is stacked there to save space and until the owner is ready to sell. In Glasgow the principal objects of interest are the cathedral, the university, the museum and the monuments of Sir Walter Scott, Queen Victoria, George IV, etc. In London there is so much to see, and it is so large that a person is apt to become tired of sightseeing. Londoners themselves go in large numbers to see the queen's jubilee presents, and those who have plenty of time gaze on "The Unemployed" from Trafalgar square walls. "The Unemployed" are a large number who are destitute and out of work. Today they held a meeting, at which about 1000 were present, and then marched down the streets followed by a dody of police. Their cry is, "Work or bread." There is calculated to be about 20,000 destitute persons in London out of any regular employment. The parliament buildings are worth seeing, as is Crystal palace, the tower, etc. In fact the objects of interest are too numerous to describe or even mention in a small space. "Buffalo Bill" has a big name here, and the American exposition is drawing good crowds. At one o'clock in the afternoon and six in the evening it is bewildering to see the crowds of people hurrying in great floods along Cheapside, the Strand, and over London Bridge. A person has to go with the crowd. He cannot stop and talk very long with a friend he may meet, and when crossing the street has to "keep an eye out." Living in London is higher than on the Pacific coast. The working classes exist only. They do not know what good living is. The Metropolitan underground system of railway furnishes a cheap and quick method of going to different parts of the city, but is behind the New York elevated in one thing at least, that a person can see nothing on the route. I leave for Paris in a few days. Yours Truly, GEO. W. WATT." London, Oct. 14, 1887. FINE WEATHER.—Hardly a farmer is there who does not wear a 7x9 smile on his face, and the reason is—the weather. The pleasant month of October enabled the grangers to dispose of their summer fallow, and the clear weather of the past few days, after the recent heavy rains, has been just the thing for fall plowing and sowing, though it is a little late. The only thing to be apprehended from a season of dry weather is that the river may descend from its present boating stage, and retard freighting. A GRAND RUSH.—The disposition of the Savage stock of books and stationery by the assignee, at cost, has increased trade in that establishment wonderfully. Everybody goes and buys. INSPECTION.—Mrs. N. M. Frye, department president of the Woman's Relief Corps, last night inspected Sedgwick Relief Corps. Mrs. Frye is the guest of Mrs. J. W. Crawford and daughter Emma while in the city. REMOVED.—Dr. H. R. Holmes has changed his residence to the front rooms over Lamport's store room in the new Bank block. His office is over John Hughes' store room in the same block. When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had children, she gave them Castoria.
